INTRODUCTION.

When Mr. and Mrs. Schneider first visited the Wallenpaupack region of Pike Co., Pa., in June 1939, their interest in genealogy centered on the Kimble and Ridgway families, who had lived in this beautiful region before making their early trek to Michigan and Wisconsin, many years before the Civil War. Subsequent visits by the Schneiders to Wayne and Pike Counties in 1940 and 1950 and by Mr. Howard Kimble in 1952, and extensive research by them culminated in a joint venture to produce the first book on Jacob Kimble and Thomas Ridgway of Pike Co., Pa., and their descendants.

This genealogy is not complete in every respect, but it should be of inestimable value to anyone who wishes to continue the work in the years to come. With this book as a start it should not be an insurmountable task for any interested party to enlarge upon any branch if he is willing to spend the time on it.

Compiling this book has been complicated by the fact that Jacob Kimble's brother, Levi Kimball, lived in the Paupack area for some time and also left descendants; fortunately, however, most of them, to our knowledge, retained the original spelling of Kimball. Census collectors, however, were careless and frequently used Kimball, Kimble, Cimbal and other variations indiscriminately.

It is the intention of the writers to continue with their research and copies of any worthwhile additional material will be filed with the Newberry Library, Chicago, and, if possible, with the State Library at Hartford, Conn., and the Honesdale, Pa. Historical Society.

It is hoped that this book will be of interest and of value to many future readers.

Oct. 1, 1952.

FIRST FOUR GENERATIONS.

The following first four generations of our subject Jacob[5] Kimble, were obtained from Morrison and Sharples' fine two volume work on the Kimball Family and the numbers shown refer to the code in their volumes and are repeated for reference only.

Starting, however, with Jacob[5] Kimble as No. 5, the writers have designated a new series of numbers because none of his descendants are listed in Morrison and Sharples. The reason, no doubt, for this was that Jacob[5] Kimble moved from Preston, Conn., to the Wallenpaupack settlement in Pike Co., Pa., about 1774 and changed the spelling of his name from Kimball to Kimble. The spelling of Kimble has been retained by all of Jacob's[5] descendants, with only one or two exceptions.

Mary Allyn was the daughter of Robert Allyn, founder of Norwich; Dorothy Thompson was the daughter of John and Alice (Freeman) Thompson.

Mr. Schneider visited Preston, Conn., in 1944 and again in 1950, and found little of interest. The Avery burial ground contained Parkes, Witters and an Elisha and Hope Kimball, but no John or Jacob Kimball. He was informed that there is an old private cemetery north of Preston on the old Kimball property, but it is suggested that examination of the land records in the Preston Twn. Clerk's office be made before further searching for any old Kimball landmarks.

B. Dec. 25, 1757. He was taken captive by the Indians and after long suffering and privation, died a prisoner. This, however, has been refuted by some writers. Ephraim located at the Narrows (Kimbles) after the Revolutionary War. He built a saw mill, and cleared up land just south of the railroad tracks. The foundation of his original log house is still visible close to the east side of the road and the foundation of the newer home (later occupied by his son Ephraim and his grandson Ephraim J.) is just opposite on the west side of the road. This large frame house was standing until 1950 when it was torn down for its lumber.

Narrows was also known as Mount Moriah. After the railroad was built, it was renamed Kimble Station or just Kimbles in honor of Ephraim and his many descendants who continued to live there for many years.

(See Mathews, pages 83, 513, 595, 685, 813, 950, 952, 959, 960; Goodrich, page 310; Miner, page 472; N. E. Comm., page 1254.)

RIDGWAY FAMILY.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. THOMAS RIDGWAY.

B. about 1755 in New Jersey; m. 1779 to Martha Matthews (b. about 1760; d. June 12, 1832); settled at Milford, Pike Co., Pa. from Hunterdon Co., N. J. about 1800.

Among their children:

i. Matthew, d. Oct. 1820; lived in Milford, Pa.
ii. Gertrude, lived at Hainesburg, N. J.
2. iii. Charles B., b. Dec. 4, 1789; m. Elizabeth Barnes.

Thomas Ridgway was of Scotch extraction and a tailor by trade. Born between 1755 and 1760, he fought in the Revolutionary War, although he and his wife were styled Quakers. He married Martha Matthews in 1779, her brother married Otey Younge in 1800 and Otey's brother Philip married Thomas Ridgway's sister Prudence. The Matthews came from Trenton, N. J.

Martha (Matthews) Ridgway was born about 1765. Her husband Thomas left her and returned to England in 1811. She lived with her son Matthew in Milford until his death in 1820 when she went to live with her daughter Gertrude. She died June 12, 1837, and is buried in the Hainesburg, N. J. local cemetery. (Cemetery stone at Hainesburg is hard to decipher but appears as Martha, wife of Thomas Ridgway, died June 12, 1837, age 82 years).

It is also believed that Thomas Ridgway, of Milford was a grandson or great grandson of a Thomas Ridgway, who was, in turn, the son of Richard Ridgway, who came to America in 1679 and settled in New Jersey and became the progenitor of the New Jersey Ridgways. (See "Descent of the Ridgway Family, by George C. Ridgway, Evansville, Ind., 1923).

Most of the above information was obtained from an old notebook found in the attic of Diana (Keene) La Compte of Milford, Pa. Mrs. La Compte said it was copied in the notebook by her mother Sarah Jane (Burleigh) Keene, daughter of Mary (Ridgway) Burleigh, about 1905, and was obtained, in part, from a Mr. Kern of N. Y. C., who was also working on the Ridgway genealogy.

While it appears entirely probable that Thomas Ridgway of Milford was a descendant of Richard and his son Thomas Ridgway of the New Jersey line, the exact connection has not been completed. From the best information gained so far, it appears that Thomas Ridgway came from Hunterdon County, N. J., and settled at Milford about 1800 or very soon thereafter. One son Matthew continued to live at Milford, while his other son Charles B. moved to Lackawaxen about 1807 and lived there his remaining years.

SECOND GENERATION.

(See 1850, 1860, 1870 Census, Lackawaxen T. S. Pike Co.)

Mathews, page 955 says that John Barnes married Elizabeth Haley or Hawly. Among their children were Thomas, Abraham, Cornelius, Willliam, Nathan, John and Jeremiah and their descendants are scattered through the West and elsewhere. Elizabeth, a daughter of John Sr., was the wife of Charles B. Ridgway of Lackawaxen. Henry Barnes, a brother of Mrs. Ridgway lived in Milford; Lucian and Britton Barnes were his sons. Virginia m. Dr. E. Haliday; Hortense m. Rev. D. Sandford; Martha m. S. Thrall of Milford. Jeremiah T. Barnes and Peter S. Barnes are also descendants. John Barnes Sr., was the first settler of Lackawaxen coming before the Revolution and locating at the mouth of the Lackawaxen River on the north side of the stream.

Charles B. Ridgway came from Milford to Lackawaxen and located, about 1807, on a farm one mile from the mouth of the Lackawaxen River, also on the north side of the stream. His home was alongside the Delaware and Hudson Canal at Lock No. 3 which was known as Ridgway's Lock. While a shoemaker by trade, he became, a farmer, successful business man, was justice of the peace for many years and took an active part in public affairs. David B. Ridgway and Catherine W. Kimble were married by Rev. William Reddy in the presence of Thomas J. Ridgway, David's brother and Ephraim Kimble, a cousin of Catherine.

In 1844 or 1845 David B. bought land from William R. Walker along the Lackawaxen River and on which the Delaware and Hudson Canal Lock No. 24 was located. The farmhouse stood less than 100 feet in front of the lockhouse and less than 200 feet north of the lock itself and here David B. and Catherine lived until they came to Wisconsin in 1856.

David B. it is said, in addition to the farm, ran a store with a cobbler shop in the basement, the foundation of which still remains on the south side of the lock. The farmhouse was still standing in 1940 but by 1950 nothing but rubble remained. The lockhouse in 1950 was occupied and the rather large barn near the road is still in use. Just inside the large barn door to the left will be found, —1848— D. B. Ridgway carved in letters eight inches high on the manger.

David B. sold his farm at lock 24 early in 1856 and with his family moved to Wisconsin and arrived at Whitewater on May 24. He purchased a farm in Lima Twn., Rock Co. about a mile east of the Newcomb Kimble place and erected the buildings. Just as he finished the house, he died of appendicitis on Jan. 19, 1857. Catherine W. continued to live on the farm for several years but finally rented it and moved to Whitewater to live at the home of her daughter, Minerva, wife of Dr. C. I. Two children, William L. and Thomas J., both died in infancy. Mrs. Jeanette Winans says her father and great grandfather's names were Thomas Jefferson Ridgway.

ANSLEY FAMILY.

JOHN ANSLEY, born in England about 1745 and his wife, Eunice, settled in Connecticut and in 1774 migrated with a party to Paupack, Pike County, Pa. During the war, these pioneers were dispersed, but John who was a blacksmith by profession, seems to have remained in Pike County and established a family which has at this time grown to a large number of descendants, residing in that part of Pa. and nearby New York.

John and his wife lived at Paupack and like Jacob Kimble Sr. were buried either at Lower Paupack Cemetery or in unmarked graves at Paupack Cemetery.

Children:

i. Eunice, b. Feb. 14, 1767; m. Ephraim Kimble (See No. 9, page 13).

ii. John, b. 1768; d. June 13, 1818; m. Sally Kimball, dau. of Levi Kimball; both bur. at Paupack.

iv. William, b. July 7, 1773; m. Esther Witter; (2) Margaret Gramesley (p. 61, Our Ansley Family).

v. Joseph, b. 1775; d. 1831; m. Polly Kimball (b. 1779; d. 1847); dau. of Levi Kimball; both bur. at Paupack. Joseph was an innkeeper at Paupack.

vi. Elizabeth; m. Jesse Smith.

vii. Anna, b. 1777; d. April 15, 1841; m. Jacob Kimble (See No. 10, page 15).
